A Bitter Lullaby

Good-bye my love, farewell
Good-bye my love, sleep well
Perhaps tomorrow I'll be gone
For ever gone, for ever gone.

The mighty night is falling down
And in the growing dark
A lonesome guitar plays
A weeping lullaby.

During my life I learned
That love can give us life
That love can kill it twice.
I learned as well that love
Makes people bright and strong
And often does them wrong.

Good-bye my love, farewell
Good-bye my love, sleep well
Perhaps tomorrow I'll be gone
For ever gone, for ever gone.

The mighty night is falling down
And in the growing dark
A lonesome guitar plays
A weeping lullaby.

(A) Love can be the power
That grows or kills a flower.
Love is the mother of tears
Tears of joy, tears of fears.
(A) Love can give you pride
Can make you want to hide.

Good-bye my love, farewell
Good-bye my love, sleep well
Perhaps tomorrow I'll be gone
For ever gone, for ever gone

The mighty night is falling down
And in the growing dark
A lonesome guitar plays
A weeping lullaby.

(A) Love can bring the light

Or turn day into night.
(A) Love can give us lust
Or make us bite the dust.
Love can be tenderness
Or leave us in a mess.

Good-bye my love, farewell
Good-bye my love, sleep well
Perhaps tomorrow I'll be gone
For ever gone, for ever gone.

The mighty night is falling down
And in the growing dark
A lonesome guitar plays
A weeping lullaby.

(A) Love can be the flame
That warms, or burns with shame.
Love is a shining hope
And it's a killing dope.
Love can make you feel free
Or make you want to flee.

Good-bye my love, farewell
Good-bye my love, sleep well
Perhaps tomorrow I'll be gone
For ever gone, for ever gone.

The mighty night is falling down
And in the growing dark
A lonesome guitar plays
A weeping lullaby.

Life is a tree
Love are the leaves
My tree is bare
You are not there
When does spring bloom
And end my doom?
